13. [redacted] Met with Senator George D. Aiken who provided a notebook of correspondence received by Dr. and Mrs. [redacted] of New York City from a [redacted]. This correspondence was furnished the Senator by [redacted] a personal friend of the Senator. It was Senator Aiken's desire to pass such information as may be contained in the documents to the Agency for such use as we might care to make of it. He would appreciate return of the documents together with guidance for appropriate response to [redacted].

14. [redacted] Nancy Shepard, in the office of Representative Alexander Pirnie (R., N.Y.), called in connection with an applicant reject, one [redacted] wanting to know if this were a complete close out for all time. After checking with Personnel, Miss Shepard was advised that he simply failed to meet our technical skills standard and possibly could be considered at a later date. I further indicated that we would be communicating directly with [redacted] advising him of this.
